

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Red Hen Press

P.O. Box 3537
Granada Hills, CA 91394
ph 818-831-0649
fax 818-831-6659
info@redhen.org

Poems for Infidels

Gail Wronsky

Pub. Date: Nov. 1, 2004

Audience: Adult General

Binding: Tradepaper

ISBN: 1-59709-001-8

Price: $12.95

Check out other Red Hen

Press titles at at www.redhen.org

Poems for Infidels

a book of poetry

by Gail Wronsky

Any other poet with Gail Wronsky's gift for sheer gorgeousness—for the sensuous image, for shapeliness, for the ever-unfolding ever-mobile vocal line—would call it a day. But Wronsky's intellect is of a larger order: restless, irreverent, wittily attuned to the force-fields of cultural fashion and to the depths those fashions bespeak. How heartening to see trenchant critique and passionate endorsement so fully intertwined! Poems for Infidels is a celebrant's book, "guilty . . . of beauty" and, resoundingly, of faith.

—LINDA GREGERSON

In Poems for Infidels, Gail Wronsky is at the height of her powers—flirtatious, nervous, witty, and generously real. Hers is a poetry of desire and longing, of disobedience in search of transformation and transcendence. In short, a poetry of celebration, "a celebration in which word/ turns back into flesh, absence into / heat, into light, into meaning."

—RALPH ANGEL

With just the right touches of irony and wise eroticism, Gail Wronsky presents a world well-traveled, finely observed and engaged. But it is not the travel locales nor the exotics of her poetry that make it unique—for that, we must look to her great heart, her ear, and her unblinking eye.

—SAM HAMILL

About the author

Gail Wronsky is the author of two previous books of poetry, Again the Gemini are in the Orchard and Dying for Beauty, a finalist for the Western States Federation of Arts Poetry Prize. She is also the author of a novel, The Love-talkers. Her work appears in a number of anthologies including Poets Against the War and A Chorus for Peace. She is Director of Creative Writing and Syntext at Loyola Marymount University in Los Angeles.

For more information contact 818-831-0649